KING AUDITORIUM RE-OPENS VADM TUTTLE ADDRESSES GRADS

The emerging role of space and electronic warfare technology was presented to the NPS graduating class of 1993 by guest speaker Vice Adm. Jerry O. Tuttle,

Tuttle, a 1963 graduate of NPS and current director, Space and Electronic Warfare, spoke of the university's impact on his career. "My experience at Postgraduate school... positively and profoundly changed my life," Tuttle said. "It was the seed that has permitted me to lead the Navy into the future in the most exciting discipline since the birth of Naval Aviation."

Tuttle said space and electronic warfare will "focus on providing high capacity satellite communications -- providing a new common 'engine' for all processing applications."

Addressing the graduating class Tuttle said, "I charge you to broaden your horizons. In addition to your technical skills and your managerial expertise, you must take a leadership role in the evolution of technology for combat capabilities. You must be among the leaders exploiting the information management revolution."

The NPS graduating class of 1993 marked the official re-opening of King Hall auditorium. Over the past year the auditorium has undergone a seismic upgrade, an addition of 400 seats bringing overall seating capacity to 1,332, an addition of a wheelchair seating area and handicap accessible restrooms.

100 YEARS OLD TODAY NAVY CHIEFS ANNIVERSARY

Today, marks the 100th Anniversary of Chief Petty Officers in the Navy.

Chief of Naval Operations, Adm. Frank B. Kelso II said, "In the United States Navy, the title 'Chief Petty Officer' carries with it responsibilities and privileges no other armed forces in the world grants enlisted people.

"These responsibilities and privileges exist because for 100 years, Chiefs have routinely sought out greater challenges and assumed more responsibilities. The example set by Chiefs for the last century inspires our young men and women of today.

"Indeed, what Americans see in our impressive young sailors is the tradition of devotion and dedication the first Chiefs established with their sacrifices and valor.

"In large measure they have not only ensured my success," Kelso said, "but the success of every person who has served in our Navy.

"Their successors, today's chief petty officers, are no less dedicated. They prove their worth every day and continue to meet great challenges and endure adversity to protect our Nation's interests.

"I salute the chief petty officers of the past, present and future."
